

The History of

thereby liveth, is to be no counterfeit, but the true and perfect image of life indeed. The better part of valour is Discretion; in the which better part I have saved my life. Zounds, I am afraid of this gunpowder Percy, though he be dead: how if he should counterfeit too, and rise? by my faith I am afraid he would prove the better counterfeit: therefore I'll make him sure, yea and I'll swear I slew him. Why may not he rise as well as I? nothing confutes me but eyes, and no body sees me: therefore sirra, with a new wound in your thigh, come you along with me.

He takes up Hotspur on his backe. Enter Prince and John of Lancaster.

Prin. Come, brother John, full bravely halt thou fliest Thy mayden Sword.

John. But soft, who have we heere?
Did you not tell me this fat man was dead?

Prin. I did, I saw him dead,
Breathlesse, and bleeding on the ground. Art thou alive?
Or is it fantasie that playes upon our eye-sight?
I prethee speake, we will not trust our eyes
Without our eares, thou art not what thou seem'st.

Fal. No, that's certaine, I am not a double man: but if I be not Iacke Falstaffe, then am I a Jacke: there is Percy, if your Father will doe me any honour, so: if not, let him slay the next Percy himselfe: I looke to be either Earle or Duke, I can assure you.

Prin. Why, Percy I slew my selfe, and saw thee dead.

Fal. Didst thou? Lord, Lord, how the world is given to lying! I graunt you, I was down, and out of breath, and so was he, but we rose both at an instant, and fought a long houre by Shrewsbury clocke, if I may be beleev'd, so: if not, let them that should reward Valour, beare the sinne upon their own heads. I'll take it upon my death, I gave him this wound in the thigh if the man were alive, and woud deny it, Zounds I will make him eate a peece of my Sword.

John. This is the strangest tale that ever I heard.

Prince. This is the strangest fellow, brother John.
Come, bring your luggage nobly on your backe,

For

Henry the Fourth.

For my part, if a lie will doe thee grace,
I'll guild it with the happiest termes I have.

A retreat is sounded.

Prin. The Trumpet sounds retreat, the day is ours:
Come, brother, let's to the highest of the Field,
To see what friends are living, who are dead. Exeunt.

Fal. I'll follow, as they say, for reward: He that rewards me, God reward him. If I do grow great, I'll grow lesse: for I'll purge and leave Sacke, and live cleanly, as a Nobleman should doe. Exit.

*The Trumpets sound, enter the King, Prince of Wales, Lord
John of Lancaster, Earle of Westmerland, with Worcester and Vernon prisoners.*

King. Thus ever did rebellion finde rebuke:
Ill-spirited Worcester, did not we send grace,
Pardon and termes of love to all of you?
And wouldst thou turne our offers contrary,
Misuse the tenor of thy Kinsmans trust?
Three Knights upon our party slayne to day,
A noble Earle, and many a creature else,
Had been alive this houre,
If like a Christian thou hadst truly borne
Betwixt our armies true intelligence.

Wor. What I have done, my safety urg'd me to,
And I embrace this fortune patiently,
Since not to be avoyded, it falls on me.

King. Beare Worcester to the death, and Vernon too:
Other offenders we will pause upon.
How goes the Field?

Prin. The noble Scot Lord Douglas, when he saw
The fortune of the day turn'd quite from him,
The noble Percy slayne and all his men,
Upon the foote of feare, fled with the rest:
And falling from a hill, he was so bruiz'd,
That the pursuers tooke him. At my Tent
The Douglas is, and I beseech your Grace,
I may dispose of him:

King.
